

Louisville, KY

February 10, 2010

HogWildPokerLeagues.com launches a unique poker experience: “Play Poker with your Friends – Online or In-Person”

After two years of development, HWP, LLC, has launched their groundbreaking online poker technology. Players are able to create and manage in-person and online poker leagues and tournaments. Playing online is a unique experience that replicates playing Texas Hold ‘em in your friend’s basement, including the way cards are dealt, full audio communication and unique indicators that keep players abreast of their friends status even if they are playing on different online tables

Visionary CEO Jeff Amrein saw the need to combine a high-quality online poker league with playing with your friends while playing in a neighborhood league several years ago. Managing an in-home game along with an online game with the same group of friends is a concept that simply is not available in the market today through the use of one system. “I love playing poker with my friends, competing, and trying to take their money, however, it was always tough to get everyone together at once, even monthly. We thought – ‘Wouldn’t it be easier if we could all show up online once a week.’ Once we built this platform attendance in our league shot way up,” Amrein said.

This new way of playing poker is “an inexpensive way for friends in different cities to reconnect and play poker on a regular basis” shares HWP, LLC President, Joe Luber. “With voice communication enabled, you can play with friends anywhere in the world while talking to your buddy about the way you just busted his pocket kings.”

HogWildPokerLeagues.com requires no download and there is no rake. Unique features of the platform include:

- League website that manages player rankings, stats, pictures, schedules and game communication.

- Token system to play each online game. When you sign up to play you receive tokens. Also, the system rewards players for certain activities “For example,” said Luber, “if a player wins a game, they win a token. If they invite friends, they receive tokens. You don’t pay anything unless you run out of tokens, and players may never run out!”
- A fully integrated clock for in-person game management.
- A unique online playing experience just like in your friend’s basement: Cards are dealt face down, and the system indicates when others view their cards. “We feel we’ve recreated the live experience online as closely as possible” said Amrein. “If Joe looks at his cards after the flop, it could mean that he’s playing for that flush draw.”

League creation takes a matter of minutes. The league organizer invites friends to join the league, and then schedules the games. Reminders are sent out through the system automatically, and invitees confirm to play.

The League Website maintains accurate standings, and the table is laid out in a 3D format which beta-testers have preferred over current online table layouts.

“We believe there are poker fans around the world who will love what we’ve created,” said Amrein. “This takes poker in a new social direction not seen in the market today, and we’re very excited to launch HogWildPoker Leagues.”

For more information on HogWildPoker Leagues, please go to www.hogwildpokerleagues.com.